

The Canadian Bank of Commerce

Successful management of the bank is the theme of the latest in the current series of farm booklet being by The Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Entitled "Pigs and Profits," the well-illustrated new booklet details the various factors from choice of breeding stock to the use of self-feeders—which can lead to the production of high quality hogs as the Canadian and export demand.

The booklet has been prepared with the assistance of R. P. Forshaw, Assistant Professor, Department of Animal Husbandry, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and other Canadian authorities on pig-breeding.

On Canadian farms sows are more likely to be known as housewives. Experience has shown that the booklet says, that the producer of a regular supply of quality market hogs will obtain better average market prices for his grain and dairy products than when he is sold through hogs.

Basic to a successful swine business, it continues, is the proper selection, care and feeding of the brood sow and the breeding boar. New breeders of livestock should start with either purebreds or high-quality grades from a herd that has won a succession of purebred awards.

The booklet contains further factual information and illustrations on the following points:

1. Housing and Equipment
2. Farming Time Cycles
3. Care, Feeding of Market Hogs
4. Use of Pasture
5. Sillage and Roots for Swine

6. Carcass Quality
 7. Use of Self-feeders
 8. Fortified Feed for Pigs
 9. Disease and Parasite Control
- Swine production, the booklet contends, like other endeavors, pays good dividends for the time spent in study, when the principles and ideas obtained are put into actual operation.

Copies of the new booklet can be obtained from any of The Canadian Bank of Commerce branches throughout Canada, or from The Canadian Bank of Commerce, Head Office, 25 King St. W., Toronto, Ontario.

Parrot pecks port profferer

Polly the parrot just doesn't believe in a one bit of holiday cheer and pecked knocked herself out proving it.

A well-known local gentleman visiting Polly's mistress the other evening received a glass of wine from the hostess, a traditional custom in many households during the holiday season.

Having admired Polly beforehand, the individual thought it might be a friendly gesture to share a swig up of his wine.

He offered the glass only to be nearly frightened out of his wits and later on the finger holder. Polly didn't take kindly to his gesture, ruffled up her feathers and with a loud "gaaww" plunged from her perch to bite him before falling to the floor where she lay still.

The gentleman nuzzled at his wound, tried to brush off the spilled wine and showed considerable concern for Polly's welfare.

However, she was not injured and returned to her remarkably active self when picked up by her mistress.

When the visitors left she was chatting away none the worse for having a taste of finger instead of liquid refreshment. —The Morning Light, Bathurst, New Brunswick.

RECORDED

A record 100,000 head of cattle and calves were marketed through Western Stockyards, Saskatoon, in 1957, almost 30 percent more than the previous high of 77,435 set the previous year.

Farmers received $17,700,113 for the livestock sold, a one-third increase over the $13,200,723 figure in 1956.

Officials estimate pending home purchases from farmers would bring the total figure in the Saskatoon district to about $17,000,000.

When Winter Comes... Carnivals Set Holiday Mood

Everybody joins in the fun of the carnival's Float Parade, which leads the procession to the Ice Palace where a Carnival "King" and "Queen" are crowned. Once crowned, however, royally quickly lay aside their regal splendour for the traditional red toque and gaily coloured sash which are the sports badge of fun-loving French-Canadians.

A bacterial disease of potatoes

No method has yet been devised to eliminate the bacterial ring rot organism from the potato seed piece, but according to Dr. D. S. MacLachlan of the Science Branch, Vice Division of the Canada Department of Agriculture, the disease can be prevented from spreading by the disinfection of all handling equipment and storage bins, and the use of certified or foundation seed.

Bacterial ring rot, an extremely infectious bacterial disease, is possibly the most serious of all potato diseases known today. Infection takes place through the seed piece, the only known way in which infection can occur. There is no evidence that the organism overwinters in the soil or can be spread by any insect. To a large degree the cutting knife is responsible for a high percentage of ring rot infection. As many as 50 to 100 potato sets may be contaminated by the knife following a cut through an infected tuber. For this reason the knife should be dipped in a disinfectant after each potato is cut.

Studies on the extent of disease transmission to potato sets from contaminated bags, indicate that from three to six percent of ring rot infection may come from this source. This can be eliminated through the use of fumigants and heat treatments, but the search for a more rapid and efficient method of disinfection is continuing.

Over the past three years, research in Ottawa has shown that certain newer type disinfectants are much more effective than older conventional types such as formalin or copper sulphate. These newer materials penetrate more rapidly through pile strands of potato bags and into cracks and splinters of storage rooms. Most of these newer materials such as Tensamin, San-o-fer 35 and Ocean 213 are reasonably priced, and readily available.

The development of resistant varieties is the obvious solution to the ring rot problem and for several years now research on this aspect of control has been done 55 fresh-air filled hours went into the production of this larger-than-life rabbit by two teenage boys. Ice sculpture is painted with special snow paint; prizes are awarded for the best exhibit.

"Mr. Carnival", as J. A. Ratelle is known, has been the enterprising force behind the Laurentian Winter Carnival for the past 12 years. A staff of 5, assisted by 42 committees help assure the success of this winter spectacle.

Hospital costs higher

The year-end meeting of the Redford-Victoria hospital board Monday night approved a 1958 budget calling for a deficit of $214,000 over the expected income of $204.

Expenditures during 1958 are estimated at $275,400 compared with projected expenditures of $245,972 during 1957 and $231,000 during 1956.

The 1958 figure does not include provision for depreciation estimated at $12,000. —The Advocate, Redford, Ont., Jan. 2, 1957.

Tomorrow is the greatest laboring device of today.

When the first snows cover the lovely Laurentian hills, a carnival spirit grips the imagination of heavy Quebecois and the tourists who flock by the thousands to the colourful hamlets and towns in the world-famed ski resort areas of Eastern Canada. St. Agathe des Monts, 60 miles north of Montreal, is the home of the Laurentian Winter Carnival staged annually during January and February. Ice sculpture by local craftsmen is part of the show. Above, Andre Lapointe offers a friendly assist to motorist Andre Monette and passenger Linda Miller.

Little Diane Lamontagne, mascot of the snow-shoes club, gets a warm handshake from Mr. Snowman. Sports thrills include skiing, dog sled rides and motorcycle races on the frozen lakes.

Old time suppers, where the tables are laden with tempting French-Canadian dishes, are a merry prelude to the moonlight sleigh-rides, sing-songs, and fire works displays which fill the evenings.

It is here that the acme of our civilization may be met in the great factories, the busy market-places, the scientific and mechanical wonders: Spudniks and rockets are trivial things by which to measure the struggle of the race when compared to this institution which might well be termed an example of "man's duty to man," and which we believe marks the first single step towards true civilization that will be seen in the twentieth century.

reported, "have had a bewful of Government," are planning to find this out, "the farmers to be paid, acreage other things that pass for out." A poll conducted by the Farm Journal shows that three out of five farmers voted in the poll voted for a cut-per cent voted that "the Gov-

Findings such as this should be studied by political leaders in Canada, who think they can win favor by trying to help the Government act as farmers' hired hand.

It is in economic terms, Mr.

But the kind of tax relief proposed by Mr. Pearson, with exceptions of suggested elimination of excise tax on automobiles, would do little to stimulate new industrial investment, which is real basis for growth and prosperity.

Merely to put more real money in hands of consumers in lower levels of personal income tax is no guarantee that sufficient consumer demand would be generated to raise high levels of prosperity. First there is to restore confidence, and to create a climate favorable to new investment.

Mr. Pearson's promise of extended "social security" benefits is an unhappy remember that "giveaway" politics usually turn out to be "takeaway" politics, with the elector paying the shot in the form of higher taxes or inflation or both.

Ready for Spring Planting

Field Crops Commissioner A.
M. Wilson says that purebred seed well blended is the first requirement of a good crop.
Purity is necessary for quality and seed well blended insures the possibility of distributing well seeds over an entire field.
With Municipal Purity and improved seed cleaning facilities, seed of this kind can be available to most farmers.

The preparation of seed can and should be done during winter months, says Mr. Wilson, and seed should be tested for germination, cleaned and treated and be ready for the seed drill so there will be no loss of time when the seedlings appear in the field under way. Farmers who require new seed stocks should contact their elevator agent regarding the seed-testing service of the Canadian Wheat Board for the purchase of registered or certified grain or forage seed. Farmers should be aware that the seed of a variety which is untested of varieties with the best rating for the particular crop areas are recommended by the Great Canadian Committee.
The Indian "Recommended Variety of Grain for Alberta" is now available upon request from the District Agricultural or the Alberta Department of Agriculture, Extension service, Legislative Buildings, Edmonton.
